

“Mobile advance” service

The amount and validity period of the advance payment, as well as the fee for the “Mobile advance” service, are calculated individually for each subscriber and depend on the following conditions:

- how long the subscriber has been using the Company’s services;
- how often and how much to replenish the balance;
- under which subscriber tariff plan;
- how often and for what amount does he connect and repay on time the “Mobile advance” or “Internet advance” issued earlier.

Below is a table of advance amounts and fee ranges for the “Mobile advance” service:

¹ The mobile advance is provided with automatic deduction of the service fee from the amount of the advance provided at the time of its receipt (provided that the subscriber's balance is greater than 0 UZS. If at the time of deduction of the service fee, the subscriber's balance is less than 0 UZS, then the service fee will be deducted at the next balance replenishment - when the subscriber's balance is greater than 0 UZS).

² The "Mobile advance" will be provided with a validity period of 3 to 10 days, after which the amount of the outstanding advance payment will be automatically debited from the account. If the subscriber does not make a refund before the expiration of the "Mobile advance", then the amount of debt generated may create a negative balance on the subscriber's account and the subscriber's number will switch to the "Blocked" status.
